Additional notes:

(C) Heinrich's younger brother Joseph migrated to Melbourne, Australia and established a highly successful business in which first his nephew Max became a partner and a generation later his great-nephew Jacob Engländer, son of Simon Engländer and Klara (nee Kronheimer) joined the business. According to relatives in Melbourne, Joseph was not married.

(D) Another younger brother Elias (Julius) married Fanny (Franziska) Freundlich. The original Harburg list notes that Fanny was the daughter of Joseph and Lea Freundlich. What was not noted was that Joseph was one of two sons of Meier Isaak and Voegele Freundlich, who were the parents of Margolis Kronheimer, the mother of Heinrich, Elias (Julius) and three others. In other words, Elias (Julius) and Fanny were first cousins.

(E) Elias (Julius) and Fanny, as noted on the original Harburg list had two children and several grandchildren. One grandchild, Max Wildberg (1899-1960) married Irma Scherbel (1897-1990), the couple migrated to Melbourne Australia before World War II. Their two children Kurt and Anneliese (Ann) each married in Germany, both also migrated to Melbourne and are still living (May 2014). There are four generations of the Wildberg family living in Melbourne, with Kurt and Rae Wildberg's great-grand-daughter Ruby Rose Samuels born on 15 Aug 2013.

(F) The author of these revisions, Dr Paul Gardner, is a great-grandson of Simon and Klara Engländer (nee Kronheimer). Their daughter Rosalie married Albert Gärtner; the couple had three sons, one of whom, Lothar, was Paul's father. Lothar and his wife Irma (nee Badrian) migrated to Australia in 1938 and Albert and Rosalie followed a year later. Paul and his wife, Dr Helen Gardner, both born in Melbourne, are the parents of four children and they have eleven grandchildren.

Although not in surname, the Kronheimer family lives on in Australia.
